

LOOK, POP – Computer technology is now more convenient, making it easier to stay connected to the world.

iPad or i-fad?

DESPITE some initial resistance and a dose of fear, most seniors accept that technology is here to stay and can be an exciting and helpful tool or toy.

Like the ATM that emerged in the 1980s, once you get used to it you will find it convenient and a time-saver.

Technology Training Group manager Terry Lindsay says technology can benefit everyone in their everyday life.

“For example, social media and internet banking and shopping, ebooks and more.”

Many people own a computer, but how many actually use all its capabilities? With a connection to the internet you can visit and use websites on any topic: genealogy, recipes and cooking, maps, translation, news and radio stations, medical information, weather, auctions and bidding, real estate, stock market or internet banking.

Technology Training Group offers one-on-one tuition, or tutoring for groups of up to four.
